Does your child need extra support?

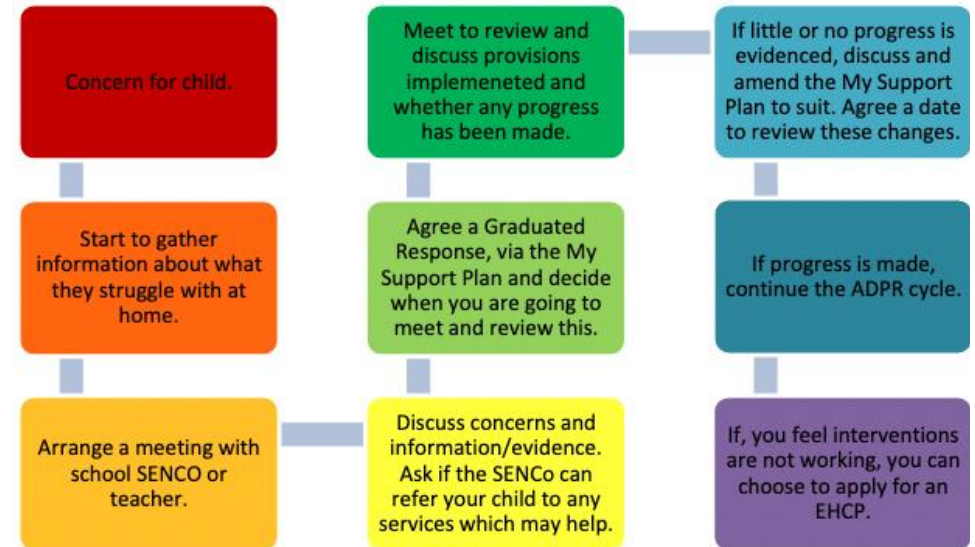

If there is a concern that a child/young person may have a special need, schools should take action to remove barriers to learning and put effective provisions in place. Initially the parent/carers and SENCo should meet and plan a Graduated Response which should follow a robust Assess, Plan, Do, Review (ADPR) cycle.

To help facilitate the graduated approach we recommend a person centred approach - the first steps of co-production – by starting a “My Support Plan” (MSP). This approach is personalised each time, capturing the views and thoughts of all involved.

The MSP process encourages accountability allowing for strong relationships between professionals and families to be fostered, whilst being the platform to gather evidence as part of the ADPR cycle. Schools should meet parents at least three times each year.

SEN support is what a school should do in line legislation, to ensure all children are making expected progress.

Parent Ambassador Quote:

“The graduated approach is very important in collecting evidence for the EHCP, or to identify that the school can meet the needs of the child through graduated Approach and how to navigate that with the school.”
