

Over 1,000 people like me have been heard

I was sexually abused as a child. Sharing my experience will help protect children in the future.

In the past, I was let down by organisations I trusted, who questioned and doubted me.

That's why the Truth Project was set up. It's part of the Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse, which aims to learn from the past, to help create a safer place for children.

Just like me, over 1,000 people across the country have already been heard in confidence and without judgement by the Truth Project.

If you were sexually abused as a child, the Truth Project would like to hear from you. Because getting a better picture of the past will help build a safer place for children in the future.
